Navy Carrier Plan May Spark Services Feud

Atomic Age Weapons
Rivalry Continues,
Developments Show

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Navy's plan to build a ten-ship fleet of supercarriers, some of them nuclear powered, points up a sharply renewed quarrel among the services over atomic age weapons.

Involved in varying degrees are all three of the armed forces—Navy, Air Force and Army. And the issues include not only atomic-engined ships, submarines and airplanes, but guided missiles as well.

Entirely reliable and neutral sources outside the Pentagon disclosed an incident today which shows the revival of rivalry evident three years ago in the violent controversy between the Navy and Air Force over the B-36 bomber and the originally planned supercarrier.

A-Test Plane Sought

Confirmed by Pentagon officials who also insisted they not be identified, the incident was described in this manner:

The Air Force member on the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, sought over a period of a year and a half and in a dozen meetings of the group to get JCS approval of the USAF's request to build the big airplane needed eventually for testing an atomic power plant.

Vandenberg's effort was blocked at each session in which he attempted to get an approving vote.

Meanwhile, the Navy was pushing for authority to go ahead with construction of a hull for its atomic-powered submarine project. A JCS go-ahead was given the Air Force for the nuclear-engined aircraft only after there was threat of intervention by a government quarter outside the Defense Department.

The Navy Department announced last Aug. 21 award of contract to the Electric Boat Company for building the atomic submarine hull. The Air Force announced on Sept. 5 a contract with Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Corporation for building the atomic-powered airplane.

In some aviation quarters there was suspicion that the Navy had help from the Army in the JCS maneuvering, the trading point for the Army being guided missiles. The Army, as is also the case with each of the other two services, would like to get control of a bigger area of the guided missile program.

But the issue is sharper between the Air Force and Army because both services have entered the tactical (battlefield use) portion of the program. The Army has done development work and formed a guided missile ground unit since the end of World War II. The Air Force moved into the field last fall with an announcement that it was putting a tactical guided missile, the Matador, into production.

The issue between the Air Force and Navy is almost entirely in the area of strategic warfare—the bombardment of an enemy's war-making industry and transportation system.

At first the question was whether conventionally powered long range bombers like the B-36 or airplanes from a carrier task force were the best weapons for such warfare.

However, nuclear engines, with their potentially unlimited range have entered the controversy, both for ship and aircraft propulsion.

Dogs Must Be Tied, Police Chief Warns

Following numerous complaints at the police station within the past several weeks, Police Chief Nerr Gaunt today issued a warning to persons who let their dogs run about at large in the city.

Licensed or not the pets are not permitted to run loose, he said, and dogs found at large will be impounded and their owners fined.

March of Dimes Committee Spurs Local Drive

EIGHT service and civic agencies are cooperating in Salem's March of Dimes campaign which is now underway to raise funds to aid infantile paralysis sufferers.

Last year Salem residents contributed $4,316 and the goal this time is double that amount. Campaign Chairman Howard Firestone and his committee members feel confident that this can be done.

Inflammable Sweater Scare Sweeps Nation; Probe Begins

NEW YORK (AP)—City officials, on the trail of inflammable sweaters, planned to visit today a New York plant which two manufacturers say supplied material for some of the garments.

A small-scale national scare has been stirred up by the sweaters, which burn to ashes in less than a minute if ignited. Police in various areas reported that many of the sweaters have been turned over to them. One reportedly burned when the wearer lit a cigarette, another when the sweater stood too near a gas stove.

New York City Fire Marshal Scott said last night he would visit the plant of the Empire State Mills here today.

Two sweater manufacturers in New York and Cleveland yesterday told officials that the Empire State Mills had supplied them with material for their products. Scott called the material "brush rayon."

Efforts to reach Empire State Mills officials last night were unsuccessful.

Scott identified the New York sweater maker as Philip Toffler, owner of the Vic-Es Manufacturing Co.

Cleveland Fire Capt. William E. Miller said Charles Barancato, of B & A Trading Co., had identified himself as a manufacturer there.

The Cleveland manufacturer was quoted as saying he had been buying the material for four years but that he no longer had a sweater stock.

It was not until last week, Toffler told Scott, that he learned the material was inflammable. Toffler said he then stopped making the sweaters, which he had been producing for the last year.

Reports of the combustible sweaters started about a month ago when a young man in Los Angeles lit a cigarette and his new sweater went "poof."

Since then, similar incidents have been reported until the burning sweater fear reached national proportions. Some sweater wearers "tested" garments they had been wearing for months and saw them burst into flames in four seconds. The sweaters were ashes in 50 seconds.

Peddlers Selling Them
Retail prices on the sweaters have ranged from $2 to $24 each with most buying saying they paid $5 to $10. Toffler said his price to jobbers ranged from $2 to $2.50. Itinerant peddlers or salesmen traveling in cars have been selling them.

Many places, like New York, have no law against the selling of inflammable clothing. Some places do. California is one.

The inflammable sweaters have turned up, so far, in New Jersey, California, Massachusetts, Maryland, Texas, Nebraska, Pennsylvania, New York, Kentucky, Ohio, Wisconsin, Rhode Island and Michigan.

In Cambridge, Mass., yesterday the sweater scare spread to rugs after police there received complaints that some small rugs burst into flame when placed near an open fire. Authorities said the rugs apparently were made of the same material as the sweaters.

California Dems Endorse Truman

Backers Of President,
Warren Are Opposed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Insurgents today challenged efforts of leaders in both parties to deliver California's party votes for President Truman and Gov. Earl Warren in the Democratic and Republican presidential nominating contests.

Arrangements by organization democrats to put a slate of delegates in the June 3 primary pledged to Mr. Truman failed to halt a move by supporters of Senator Kefauver (D-Tenn.) to match this with a similar slate.

On the Republican side, critics of Warren, an avowed candidate for the OP presidential nomination, called a meeting tonight to pick an opposition slate.

The California Republican Assembly, a volunteer organization which campaigns in the primary before the state central committee takes over in the general election, has endorsed Warren.

Members of the Democratic state central committee named a 21-man committee to work for a Truman delegation. James Roosevelt, national committeeman from California, said that was the way national party chairman Frank McKinney wanted it.

Roosevelt, who tried to swing the California delegation to General Eisenhower four years ago, said: "I'm proud of Mr. Truman's record and I'd like to fight for it."

Dana Smith, former supporter of Ex-Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota and now chairman of the California forces backing Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower for the nomination, made it clear he believes the whole delegation will go to the general if Warren loses out at the convention.

Eisenhower's backers appear to believe if they can add California's voting power to the Eisenhower strength they claim in New York, Pennsylvania and other states they can overcome Taft's reputed head start in the nomination race.

Fills Domestic, Overseas Orders

Bliss Co. Does $7 Million Business In Four Years

Evidence of the nation's ability to supply substantial capital equipment abroad while filling a higher-than-ever volume of domestic orders comes from E. W. Bliss Company's Rolling Mill Division here.

Officials report shipments from Bliss factories alone, to steel, aluminum and brass mills in Europe, South America and Asia have mounted to $7,500,000 during the past four years.

Italy received no less than 12 complete installations from E. W. Bliss Company, most of which were financed through ECA funds. Acciaierie Ferriere Lombarda Falck, one of Italy's major producers, purchased the most modern rewind and welding lines available in America in addition to various modern four-high and special design cold reducing mills, according to George Perrault, sales manager of the Salem plant.

Bliss Product In Sweden
Sandvik Steel Works, Inc., Sandviken, Sweden, installed a Bliss mandrel type hot coiler, claimed to be the most efficient found in American steel plants. It is a special design unit used for coiling strip "on the fly," off the hot mill, and such units have been built up to 96" wide, for handling coils weighing up to 30,000 lbs.

Sandvik also during 1950 put into operation a Bliss-built four-stand tandem cold mill for rolling special grades of stainless and razor blade stock.

In Mexico, Bliss engineers supplied the country's first four-high mill which is used to roll aluminum. This original four-high mill for Mexico incorporates several features which especially adapt it to certain native conditions which exacted recognition.

Recently placed in operation by inexperienced natives, the mill has presented no difficulty in service or maintenance. Mill versatility permits heavy and light-gauge rolling.

England, France, Switzerland, Belgium, British West Indies, Japan and Peru also received metal processing equipment from the Bliss plant, company officials stated.

At the same time, shipments to American steel, brass and aluminum mills have increased over 50 per cent in dollar volume since 1947. Order backlogs show a 75

Illinois Gas Explosion Kills One, Hurts Two

CROSSVILLE, Ill., (AP)—Two propane gas blasts hurled pieces of a large metal tank into homes over a two-block area last night and killed an elderly widow. Two other persons were injured.

The twin explosions came as most families in this small southern Illinois town were preparing for a quiet Sunday night supper.

Mrs. Mae Skankard, about 55, died, either directly from the blast or a fire which demolished her house. Seven other frame houses were damaged badly.

Police Chief R. G. Randall said the first blast ripped apart a 500-gallon tank of the gas. A second explosion, less than a minute later, occurred in the Skankard house.

Randall said he didn't know what touched off the blasts.

Ohio 37th Division Again Goes Into Federal Service

COLUMBUS (AP)—Ohio's famed 37th Division will be mustered into federal service tomorrow for the third time in little more than a generation.

Officers and enlisted men of the Buckeye division will drop their status as Ohio National Guard members by answering roll call at armories scattered over the state. They will be inducted into federal service for 24 months.

The division will train at Camp Polk, La. Advance units already have moved there to prepare the camp to receive the full division.

In Washington today, Maj. Gen. Raymond H. Fleming, chief of the National Guard bureau, predicted the 37th again will distinguish itself in federal service.

"The fighting 37th covered itself with glory in the Pacific during World War II," General Fleming said in a statement. "I know it will meet and pass every

Truman Still Favors Filling Vatican Post

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman has definitely decided to buck widespread opposition and nominate a U.S. ambassador to the Vatican. But he has withdrawn the name of Gen. Mark W. Clark for the post.

A terse 45-word White House announcement last night said Clark's name was being withdrawn at the general's request and added:

"The President plans to submit another nomination at a later time."

Sources close to the White House emphasized that Mr. Truman's granting of Clark's request not to involve him in the controversy was not a first step in a move to drop the whole idea.

But they said they did not know who Mr. Truman might have in mind for nomination as the first full-fledged U.S. ambassador ever sent to the Vatican, seat of the Catholic church in Rome.

They said they weren't sure that Mr. Truman himself knew at this time. In any event it is not likely to be another military man because of the extra complication of requiring special legislation to enable him to retain his military status while serving in a diplomatic post.

Clark's appointment, announced just a few hours before Congress adjourned last October, drew fire from both Protestant churches and Congress members. Catholics generally approved.

Gen. Clark said the widespread religious criticism is what influenced him to ask Mr. Truman not to renominate him.

It is almost certain that whoever is named by Mr. Truman to the Rome post will face the same opposition Clark did. The criticism was almost entirely against the policy of sending an ambassador to the Vatican. Few were against the move because of Clark, personally.

It is also likely that Mr. Truman will consult with his congressional leaders beforehand the next time.

Thieves Burglarize Hotel Owner's Home

Louis A. Mattei, proprietor of the Lake Hotel, reported to police that his home at 743 Highland Ave. was burglarized sometime between 4 to 8 p. m. Saturday.

The thieves stole approximately $150 worth of liquor from basement, a ladies' wrist watch and an electric clock radio from a bedroom, three dresses, two suits, a ladies' black cloth coat and three pairs of shoes.

Police investigation revealed that entrance to the house was gained by breaking a cellar window and then unlocking the window from the inside. The intruders left through a sunroom door at the west side of the home. Muddy tracks on the rugs indicated that two persons committed the burglary.

While searching the vicinity of the house, police discovered a clothes hamper containing several bottles of liquor, a case of beer and some soiled clothes in the wooded area west of the Mattei home and approximately 200 feet east of N. Union Ave.

Mr. Mattei identified the articles as part of the loot stolen from his home.

Princess Margaret May Wed Earl, Rumors Say

LONDON (AP)—The handsome Earl of Dalkeith joined the royal family at a shooting party today amid fast-spreading rumors that he and Princess Margaret will wed.

According to the gossip, the formal announcement of their engagement is just a matter of picking the most propitious time.

The 28-year-old Scottish earl rode all night on a train from Bowhill, the border home of his immensely wealthy parents, to the Sandringham estate of King George VI in Norfolk.

Margaret herself had cut short a gay round of partying with Dalkeith in Scotland last Friday to make the same journey.

2 Seriously Hurt In Crash Near La Guardia Field

15 Hospitalized;
Rescue Is Speedy;
Dense Fog Blamed

NEW YORK (AP)—A North-east Airliner, trying to land in dense fog by radar, crashed today in the East River in the middle of New York City. All 33 passengers and three crewmen were saved.

The big, silver-and-blue plane, inbound from Boston, roared down out of the murky skies over the Bronx, and dived with a great splash into the water, a half mile short of La Guardia Field.

Passengers, some of them cut and all of them suffering shock, scrambled out and huddled on a jutting wingtip or thrashed about in the water as a dozen rescue craft swarmed to the scene.

"The first thing I knew, someone fell on me," said a passenger, Donald E. McFarlane, 25, of Needham, Mass. "A guy next to me grabbed an emergency exit. Everybody who could dived out as the water rushed in."

Emergency Hospital Set Up
Survivors were carried to an improvised emergency hospital at a Queens Pier. Fifteen of them were taken later to hospitals, but only two were reported in serious condition.

The plane sank immediately to the nine-foot rocky bottom, leaving only a wingtip and part of the tail above water. The river is much deeper a short distance away.

Aviation authorities said the plane was being guided by ground radar to the field, but when the craft was a little over three miles away, the plane image was lost on the radar screen.

When relocated, the plane was in the river, near a point where it forms a junction with three metropolitan boroughs.

The plane's pilot, Capt. Al Marsh, of Boston, was the last to leave the wrecked craft.

Trying Instrument Landing
The two-engined Conair plane apparently trying to make an instrument landing in murky weather, plunged into the river as it headed for runway 26 at La Guardia Field.

Police harbor launches, Coast Guard vessels and two helicopters raced to the scene, and began removing passengers as the heavy plane sank swiftly.

The crash, at 9:10 a. m. (EST), was at a point near where the river joins the boroughs of Manhattan, the Bronx and Queens. The current swift and deep at this spot, shrouded the plane downstream.

The Department of Hospitals set up a temporary hospital at a Queens Pier, which thronged with doctors and nurses as survivors were brought ashore from tugs.

Most of them were suffering from shock and submersion.

A heavy overcast limited visibility to a half mile and the ceiling to about 600 feet—barely above minimum flying conditions.

The plane roared down out of the fog and smashed into the water an hour and 25 minutes after it took off from Boston.

None Hurt In Three City Traffic Mishaps

No one was injured in three traffic accidents investigated by city police over the weekend.

Carl L. Bloss of MC 1, Salem, told police that as he was driving west on W. State St., and traveling over the railroad crossing at 10:35 p. m. Saturday the axle on the east side dropped suddenly, striking and damaging the hood, said windshield of his car.

At 9:20 a. m. Sunday as Nick V. Luca of Cleveland was attempting to make a right turn from Peshing St. onto S. Williams Ave., his car skidded and struck the front end of an auto operated by Russell Dwyer of Berlin, Conn. Both cars sustained minor damage.

At 11:48 a. m. Saturday a car driven by William Winder of Cleveland struck the rear of a house trailer being towed on S. State St. by a car operator, by Harold Pearson of Uniontown, O., causing minor damage to both vehicles.

Margaret herself had cut short a gay round of partying with Dalkeith in Scotland last Friday to make the same journey.

Local Builders See '52 Boom

Material Curbs Make Overall Outlook Dark

The government put the brake on home building and almost all types of civilian construction today.

But despite the newest curbs, Salem contractors have indicated that they expect 1952 to be another boom year in the home construction field. The area is plentifully stocked with building materials, they claim, and no shortage of skilled labor exists.

Announcing a new allocation of strategic materials for the construction industry, the Defense Production Administration said it would provide for a level of only 600,000 new home starts this year.

This is 45 per cent below the total of 1,100,000 dwelling begun last year and compares with a current starting rate of 850,000 homes a year.

DPA has the task of dividing up scarce materials between civilian and defense users. Its latest allocation of steel, copper and aluminum for civilian builders is for the quarter beginning April 1.

On its face the curbs are greater than DPA administrator Manly Fleischmann predicted when testifying at a congressional hearing Wednesday. At that time Fleischmann estimated home starts would drop to an annual rate of 600,000.

DPA officials said today the government hopes to push the latest figure above 600,000 by encouraging the building of small homes and the substitution of materials in more plentiful supply. Fleischmann has warned that the metal allocation may be reduced further in the third quarter of 1952 as defense industries increase their production.

About 500 new schools will be started this spring, DPA said, bringing the total under construction in the country to 2,400. It was estimated that hospital building would be maintained at the present level.

Change In Tax Law Favors Home Buyer

Changes in federal income tax law make the purchase of a new, modern home more attractive to families in Salem than at any time since individual incomes first were made subject to tax, according to William Sponseller, local lumber and building materials dealer and member of the Public Affairs Committee of the National Retail Lumber Dealers Association.

"Under the new law, the profit realized from selling an existing home which has been occupied by the owner is not taxable provided the entire selling price is reinvested in a new residence within one year," Mr. Sponseller explained.

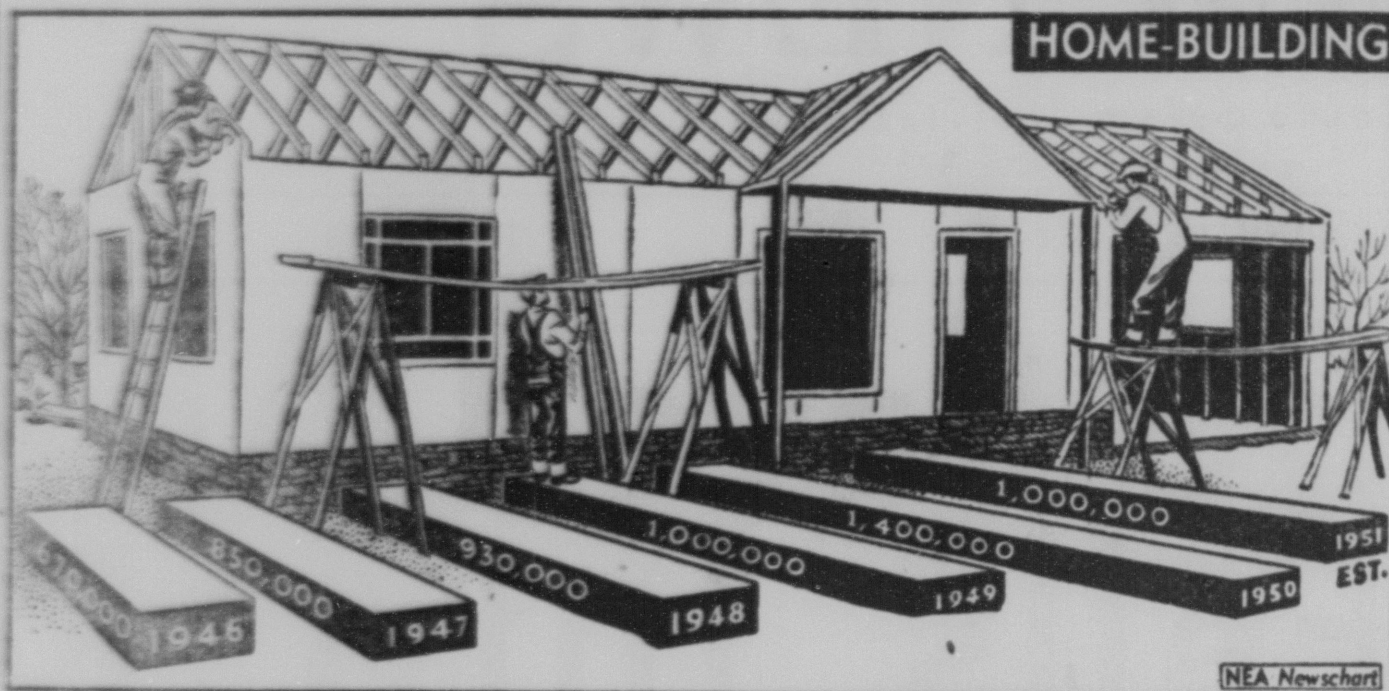

"Until the new law was enacted by Congress, any profit received from the sale of a home was subject to the capital gains tax, which ranged as high as 25 and 50 per cent, depending on how long the owner had held title to the property."

Construction Trends

232 Building Permits Issued In Salem During Past Year

ALTHOUGH 22 more building permits were issued in Salem during the past year than the preceding one, the aggregate 1951 cost of every phase of construction in the city was more than $400,000 under 1950's figure.

According to the construction records in Mayor Harry M. Vincent's office, 232 building permits were issued in 1951, covering building activity to the amount of $761,570. In 1950 the total cost of construction in the city reached $1,210,300, with 210 permits issued.

The discrepancy in the comparison lies in the fact that in 1951 only one major project, construction of the $64,500 addition to the Ohio Bell Telephone Company's building, was started; whereas in 1950, the several industrial and commercial expansion programs amounted to one-third of the year's total building cost.

Commercial and industrial construction in 1951 was severely retarded by the restrictions placed upon it by the National Production Authority.

During the past year 52 homes were built or begun here at a total cost of $483,000. The average price per dwelling was $9,288. In 1950 the aggregate cost of the 60 new homes built was $570,100 with an average per unit of $9,501.

Fifty-seven Salem residents built garages during 1951. Total cost of the structures was $34,825, an average of $611 per garage. Alterations and additions to dwellings cost 110 local people $39,745.

A breakdown of the remaining figures shows that four permits were issued to cover $32,000 in addition to industrial plants; two totaling $23,000 in additions to churches; four, total of $97,500 in new commercial building; one, service station addition and two, miscellaneous construction.

Not included in homes construction were a sizeable number of new residences erected in the suburban areas outside the corporation limits.

Converting Old Oil Lamps To Electricity

OIL lamps of the Victorian and Edwardian eras are quaint and attractive and often may be bought for comparatively little cost at auctions, in second-hand shops or maybe just found in your own attic. Converting one of these old oil burners to use electricity isn't difficult at all. They usually consist of a standard set of parts—a base, a column, the oil reservoir and, on top, the chimney support which contains the wick and its adjustment mechanism. This last part can simply be unscrewed and discarded.

The principle thing that bothers amateurs in converting oil lamps is the necessity of drilling a hole through the bottom of the glass or porcelain oil reservoir in order to run the electric wire up through the column to the electric socket which replaces the wick-holder.

The first step is to disassemble the lamp and lay the parts out in correct order. Next, you'll want to drill that hole. There are several methods of doing it without danger of cracking the glass. One way is to grind the hole through with carborundum. Use a piece of wooden dowel, the diameter of the hole you want, in a hand drill.

Put a bit of carborundum on the spot where you'll drill, moisten it to hold it together, place the end of the dowel against the glass, on top of the carborundum. Start grinding slowly—repeat—slowly. Speedy grinding will only throw the abrasive to one side and waste your time. The job should take at least a half an hour. This is a slow method, but it works.

Another method of drilling through glass is with a triangular shaped file. Keep turning the file, with hand pressure, until you have a hole large enough to accommodate the wire.

You may wish to have the metal parts of the lamp plated with brass or even silver. Some metals won't take plating, so you'd better test yours the same way a professional plater does. Simply hold a small magnet against the metal. If there is no attraction to the magnet, the metal cannot be plated. If the magnet holds the metal, it can be plated. Take it to a commercial plating shop to have the job done.

In re-assembling the lamp, there is one thing to watch out for. Sometimes the column looks the same at both ends, but isn't. So if you accidentally try to assemble it upside down, you'll run into trouble and wonder what it can be.

Kills Son While Arguing With Wife

CADIZ (AP)—The sheriff quoted John Taylor today as saying he shot and killed his five-year old son accidentally while arguing with his wife.

The 36-year-old radio repairman told Sheriff Donald Tope he did not know the .22 caliber pistol was loaded. He had pulled the trigger five times before a bullet ripped through a bedroom door and into the chest of Jerry Taylor who had been awakened by the argument.

Taylor—a gun collector, marksman and amateur baseball player—had argued with his wife, Lillian, 34, over why she did not answer the telephone when he called from a pool hall at Scioto, the sheriff said.

The argument took place at their home in nearby Jewett, O. Present besides the family were Mr. and Mrs. Paul Blankenship, the sheriff added.

The Taylors have three other sons.

No charges were placed against Taylor.

Carrier-Based Planes Able To Drop A-Bombs Anywhere

WASHINGTON (AP)—United States Navy aircraft can take off from a carrier any place in the world, drop an atomic bomb 770 miles away and return, Vice Admiral John H. Cassady said today.

The deputy chief of naval operations for air made the statement in a copyrighted interview in U.S. News & World Report, a weekly news magazine.

Cassady said the navy has 12 big carriers, 10 operating while two undergo repairs. Three are kept in Korean waters, he said, and "if the world situation worsens we very definitely should build up naval air power."

Navy planes, with heavy jet-fighter escort, can deliver an atomic bomb, or a 10,000-pound bomb load, up to "770 miles out and 770 miles back," Cassady said, adding:

"If you take a map of Europe and subscribe 170-mile circles from possible carrier operating areas, you can draw your own conclusions as to naval-air capabilities."

Cassady said the navy has four jet fighters, flying and in production, that perform better than the Russian MIG-15. But he added that navy, air force and marine jets do not yet have superiority because they are outnumbered.

Communists have between 700 and 800 MIG-15's in Korea, Cassady said, but they are short-ranged and can stay aloft only for short periods.

2 Air Force Men Die In Cincinnati Fire

CINCINNATI (AP)—An early Sunday morning fire at Cincinnati's 600-room Hotel Sinton sent frightened guests scurrying for any exit they could find and caused the death of two Air Force privates.

Two firemen and seven persons rooming at the hotel were injured. The fire itself was confined to a linen room on the second floor but smoke filled the upper floors.

Confused and scared by thick smoke billowing from a linen chute, guests on the upper three stories swung down cables and television antenna wires, smashed windows and clambered onto fire escapes.

The two young servicemen were in a room on the top floor of the nine-story building. They fashioned an escape rope out of knotted sheets and were lowering themselves when the rope parted. They plunged almost seven floors.

The dead were Pvt. Harry Franklin Schaeffer, about 21, of 3355 Ash St., Harrisburg, Pa., and Pvt. Raymond G. Hatrack, 19, of 332 S. Louest St., Mt. Carmel, Pa. Schaeffer was killed outright. Hatrack died in the receiving room of a hospital.

Who's A Republican?

GEN. EISENHOWER'S avowal of personal support for the Republican party raises a question which might be answered profitably by millions of Americans.

Who's a Republican? Or, Who's a Democrat?

In this country, all it takes to belong to an political party is an avowal of support for the party. There are no purposes or inquiries to measure the faithfulness or indolence of the party.

Then, for the most part, the avowal of support is a mere formality, one that is not taken seriously. It is a mere formality, one that is not taken seriously.

Otherwise, for the ordinary citizen a party is a mere formality, one that is not taken seriously. It is a mere formality, one that is not taken seriously.

In legislative matters at the present time, the only difference between the two parties which can be marked easily is their position on centralization of political authority.

The Democratic party, which formerly stood for decentralization of authority, now is committed by its policies since the early Thirties to centralization.

The Republican party, sensing the ultimate consequences of this Democratic trend, stands for resistance to centralization, which it believes is a threat to liberty. It is on that central point, presumably, that Gen. Eisenhower's avowal of support had to be based.

While individual Republicans might make almost as many lists of requirements as there are individuals, there is only one other legislative issue which could be called fundamental—the Taft-Hartley Act.

The Democratic administrations of Frank D. Roosevelt and Harry Truman supported a policy of special favor under the law for labor unions in relation with the public in general and with employers in particular. The retention of this favor became a test issue in Congress.

The Republican position was that a rule of equity had to be established for the preservation of the sovereign rights of Americans. The Taft-Hartley Act became the expression of that policy. It deprives unions of no rights which they could accept to hold under the spirit and letter of the Constitution.

The significance of the Eisenhower avowal, therefore, aside from its bearing on presidential politics, is in its expression of intent to change administration. Gen. Eisenhower is opposed to keeping a Democratic administration in power any longer.

No Excitement, Please

IF ANYTHING about the prospect of U.S. Attorney General McGrath in charge of a federal housecleaning is certain, it's moderation.

Mr. McGrath and his predecessor, Tom C. Clark, could have had a clean house continuously since 1945, had they chosen to use the cleaning tools at their command. But as Mr. McGrath is believed to have told President Truman in explaining why he preferred not to step aside under the pressure of scandal, he did not know that he was expected to follow a hard policy about people who challenge the Department of Justice to bring them to terms.

It may now be assumed that he knows there has been a change of signals. But until it has been proved to the contrary, it may not be assumed that the Department of Justice will not on a demonstration of housecleaning.

Every married man knows it is possible to clean house without tearing up every thing and causing a lot of needless excitement and bitterness. To be sure, no woman seems to be able to do this, but it's a good theory.

Watch for the quietest and most unobtrusive housecleaning on record in the next few months while the forgetful public quickly forgets the noise unprovoked by congressmen in investigating tax cheats.

Frank Costello's Throat

THOUGH there seems to be no present danger of a miscarriage of justice in the guileless Frank Costello's case, the trial of the notorious gambler is a contemplation of Congress change must not miss the point.

There are many millions of Americans waiting to be assured that more than the case of a sore throat was necessary to justify Costello's walkout on the hearings of the senate crime committee last spring. Granted that the witness did have a sore throat, the question is whether any other witness with the same degree of evidence could have walked out without serious consequences.

Doctors and political bullies have done their best to drive the steam out of what happened in this country when millions of people realized for the first time that underworld characters like Costello had more influence with the Democratic party than most of the party's national officials. The issue was whether or not a man with this much influence could be touched by the law. The issue is still unsettled.

Taft vs. Eisenhower

By PETER EDSON

Battle Would Chart Path Of GOP

WASHINGTON
A TAFT VS. EISENHOWER battle at the Republican national convention in Chicago is now being sized up as a showdown on whether the Grand Old Party goes conservative or progressive.

This conclusion is based not so much on what Senator Taft has said or on what General Eisenhower has said. It is based, rather, on the men behind each candidate.

Senator Taft would, of course be one of the first to assert that he is really a progressive. He doesn't like to have the label of "reactionary" pinned on him.

As proof of Taft's liberalism, his recent appearance with Democratic Senator Harry Byrd of Virginia, on an American Medical Association forum is cited. On most questions, Senator Taft's position was considered to be to the left of Senator Byrd's.

Also, it pointed out that Senator Taft was chairman of the Resolutions Committee that drafted the GOP platform of 1946 and 1948.

Even Gov. Earl Warren of California, an avowed progressive, has the support of most Republican Old Guard politicians.

In trying to shake off the mantle of conservatism thrown over the shoulders of their candidate, Taft supporters have asserted that it is the professional politicians—the candidates for public office—who are backing Eisenhower in the hope that they can ride to victory on Eisenhower's coattails.

IN SPITE OF THIS, Senator Taft has gained the reputation of being the spokesman for the conservatives. He is the number one enemy of the New Deal and Fair Deal Democrats. He is opposed to nearly all union labor organization leaders. He has the backing of most businessmen.

He has been critical of nearly all of the so-called bipartisan foreign policies. These are the points that lead to the conclusion that if Senator Taft is the Republican candidate, he would steer the party on a course decidedly to the right.

Leading the campaign to make General Eisenhower the GOP candidate are Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., of Massachusetts and Senator James H. Duff of Pennsylvania, both with known sympathies for progressive Republicanism.

Senator Lodge was even a candidate in opposition to Senator Taft.

Of the other Republican candidates, Gov. Warren, as mentioned above, is definitely a progressive. Gov. Harold Stassen of Minnesota used to be considered a great light by the liberal wing of the GOP. Since his most recent press conference appearances in Washington, in which he dodged more issues than he tackled, it is uncertain just what he stands for.

Where all four of these candidates or his spokesmen will have a chance to speak to the party moguls and show his colors.

Lots were drawn and Gov. Warren got the invitation to speak at a luncheon on Thursday, Jan. 17. Senator Taft has been invited to speak at the banquet that night. Senator Lodge will speak for Ike at lunch on Friday and Gov. Stassen at the banquet Friday night.

That should open up the Republican campaign with four bangs.

Taft for chairmanship of the GOP policy committee in the Senate. Also prominent in the Eisenhower-for-President movement are Republican Senator Frank Carlson and ex-Senator Harry Darby of Kansas.

Their voting records in the Senate were in the main in support of the Taft wing of the party position.

They support Eisenhower because Kansas is Eisenhower's home state, traditionally Bull Moose in sentiment since the days of Teddy Roosevelt.

The Eisenhower backer who clinches the belief that the General will be found in the camp of GOP progressives is Gov. Tom Dewey of New York.

It was Gov. Dewey, more than any other Republican, who was accused by his own party of too much "me-too-ism," meaning that he supported some Democratic programs for social security and the bipartisan foreign policy.

GENERAL EISENHOWER can be securely ticketed as favoring internationalism as the American foreign policy. He is by no means an isolationist. He has even been the most important instrument for carrying out the Truman-sponsored military assistance in Europe.

If General Eisenhower should become the Republican nominee, Gov. Dewey, Senators Lodge, Duff, Carlson and the others who were "for Eisenhower before Chicago" will naturally be in a position close to the throne where they would have the most influence.

Of the other Republican candidates, Gov. Warren, as mentioned above, is definitely a progressive.

Gov. Harold Stassen of Minnesota used to be considered a great light by the liberal wing of the GOP. Since his most recent press conference appearances in Washington, in which he dodged more issues than he tackled, it is uncertain just what he stands for.

"I Knew Him When . . ."

The Service Of Profits

By DR. GEORGE S. BENSON

WHILE STUDYING conditions in Europe recently, Dr. William T. Bean, Principal of the Butler Senior High School, Butler, Pennsylvania, toured some of France's nationalized industries. After going through an automobile plant near Paris he queried the manager about the company's objectives. "We are concerned first of all," said the manager, "with maintaining jobs for the employees." Yet Dr. Bean found that wages of employees in this nationalized factory hadn't increased since 1939.

In this country which is operated primarily for their benefit, the workers' welfare had not improved in 12 years. There had been no progress. The situation was stagnant. Why? Because wage and profit incentives had been abolished. So had competition.

THERE WAS NO incentive for the workers or the management to make a better automobile at a lower price. Under Socialism wages are set on the basis of individual need, not on the basis of efficiency or individual merit, or on production. Any "profit" made goes into the treasury of the Welfare State, not into the company's treasury for improvements, wage increases etc.

"From each according to his ability; to each according to his need." This is basic Socialism, the Welfare State economic philosophy in a nutshell. In actual practice, the worker has no voice in the measurement of his ability or his "need." He is ordered by a bureaucrat of the Labor Ministry to perform a certain job. The wage is fixed by another bureaucrat, or several. The size of the wage depends upon the bureaucrat's idea of the worker's "need."

It sounds almost unbelievable, doesn't it, that workers would submit themselves to such regimentation, that such ridiculous measures could actually be in operation today in most of the nations of the world—under Socialism.

Four, dumb Ribs just overestimated herself. She should have been content to eat her way to the beautiful silver compete suit, able for nuts and small fruits and hope for the best. Churchill

Thrown On Head At Four

WASHINGTON

"ONE THING you must remember about Mr. Churchill," said the visiting Englishman, "is that he was thrown from a donkey at the age of four—and landed on his head."

Then he grinned at our startled expressions and went on to explain himself:

"I'm not suggesting there is anything wrong with the old boy's head now. Far from it. But you can always count on him to do the unexpected, just as he was doing when he was four."

"So I'd go easy, if I were you chaps, on forecasting what he's likely to tell your Congress when he addresses it next Thursday. He may surprise you. He may surprise even himself."

One of the reporters around the table, an American, nodded.

"Like before D-day in the late war," he said. "Churchill, you know, was dead set against an invasion of the south of France. Fought it at the Quebec conference and kept right on fighting it."

"Well, we did push into southern France, and who should turn up on the deck of a destroyer offshore, giving his V-sign, cheering the boys on—but good old Winnie."

WE MULLED that one for a while. Then the Englishman said:

"He's one of the few great men this century has seen. No doubt about that. But he can act like a spoiled child on occasion."

"At one of the Big Three conferences during the war—Yalta, it must have been, and he's told this story himself—Churchill stormed out of a party because Stalin and Molotov were pulling his leg over the question of what to do with Germany."

"The Russians went after him, clapped him on the back and said what amounted to, 'Rats, old boy, come back and have a nip. We were only playing.' They had the devil of a time convincing him."

"Great kidders, those Russians," said one of the Americans, sourly.

"Churchill, though," another said, "has a priceless sense of humor himself. It's a dry, deliberately nonsensical kind of humor—more American than British. Yet he adds his own John Bull touch to it."

"Back in 1943 he visited Niagara Falls and a young reporter asked how he liked it. Churchill said he's seen the Falls long before the reporter was born—back in 1900, as I remember."

"Well," the kid said, "have they changed much?"

"Churchill looked as if he were deliberating. Then he said, with that chuckle of his: 'The principle seems the same. The water still keeps falling over.'"

The visiting Englishman laughed. "Like Winston himself," he said. "Keeps going on and on, though not with water."

"In '42, at the end of his conferences in Moscow, Stalin proposed that they adjourn to his quarters in the Kremlin for a touch of something. It was mid-evening, but Churchill tottled right along in spite of the fact that he had to be up at dawn for the flight back to London."

"I heard it from a chap who was in Moscow at the time—at 3 a.m. they were still at it. Churchill never did get to bed. He took off an hour later. Stalin probably slept all the next day."

"Clever chaps, those Russians. But they never put off Winston under the table."

Health To You

Explain Adolescence Problems To Youth

THE appearance of the physical changes of adolescence may come as quite a shock to a young girl unless they are explained in advance.

Every girl approaching this age should be properly instructed, preferably by her mother, and made to realize that about one and one-half million other girls in the country are going through the same thing at the same time.

The changes of adolescence should be accepted as a step towards maturity by the girls and their parents. Before they take place, however, girls should know what to expect and should have an understanding of what the changes mean. When they do not understand, an unexpected event may cause some emotional distress. The information supplied should be given in a completely matter of fact way.

It should be explained that the changes about to develop are the result of increased activity on the part of those hormones or internal glands which have to do with femininity. This increased glandular activity does not take place at once and it takes several years before their full function is completed in the fully grown and developed woman.

The physical changes of adolescence in girls do not always come at the same age nor are they completed at the same rate of speed. There is usually no cause for alarm if there is delay until fourteen or fifteen, or if these changes start before thirteen.

The age when adolescence begins varies with different families and with racial background.

climate, and perhaps other influences. After adolescence begins, and usually for two or three years later, girls are normally somewhat more nervous and less consistent in their behavior than they were before, or will be later.

They often cry easily, become uncooperative in their actions with others and may fly off the handle at members of their family for no apparent reason.

The youngsters themselves ought to understand this and to control themselves as much as possible. It is not fair to others to behave unreasonably no matter what the excuse.

Parents should also understand that these things do happen and they should not worry about the seeming personality changes which often occur.

When unreasonable behavior on the part of adolescent girls does break out, parents are well advised to ignore the outburst altogether, take it calmly and yet continue to be firm about those things which really matter.

Joe Louis Declares War On PGA Golf Ruling

Follow Through Completes Bowler's Grooved Delivery

(Seventh of a series)
By HEDDY HOMER
Former Match Game Champion

Your wrist is not done when you have released the ball with the right hand.

You must continue the upward motion of the arm and slide to a complete stop while maintaining your balance.

If you don't keep your balance and fall or step across the foul line, you might just as well have thrown the ball in the gutter.

Good bowlers, like superior golfers, groove their swings through long practice in doing the right thing.

Part of this grooved swing is the proper follow through. If you do not make the follow through a part of your swing, you do not have a complete grooved delivery. You will not be able to develop consistency.

TOP BOWLERS score high because they have mastered their deliveries.

They release the ball at almost the same point every time.

The ball breaks or hooks into the pins in a similar manner almost every time.

Without the correct follow through, the delivery will be a choppy motion which will not apply the same amount of hook to the ball each time.

In the follow through, as in other phases of the approach and delivery, the primary thought should be of relaxation.

Some keep their right foot on the floor to act as a brake and to help their balance.

I lift mine into the air, where it provides balance for me.

Some bring the arm up higher on the follow through than others.

Try several methods.

Find the one one that suits you best.

NEXT: The towel test.

Attacks Rule Banning Negroes

Claims PGA Head Actions Dictatorial

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—An angry Joe Louis was at war with the professional Golfers Association today over its rule prohibiting him and other Negroes from tournament play.

The long-standing PGA rule against non-white players fell on Louis when he arrived yesterday for this week's San Diego Open.

Local tournament officials said the PGA rule, which they declared they had learned about only two days ago, would bar the former heavyweight boxing champion and two other Negroes—Bill Spiller and Eural Clark—Los Angeles professionals.

The usually mild-speaking Louis denounced the rule as un-American and declared PGA President Horton Smith was "another Hitler" in enforcing it.

"Horton Smith believes in the white race like Hitler believed in the super-race," he said.

Smith was not immediately available for comment.

The old ring warrior, now 37, said it was the first time he personally had experienced racial discrimination in sports.

He said the San Diego committee expected to clear about $2,000 from the tournament for the benefit of crippled children.

"I'll give them double that amount if they'll cancel the tournament," Louis said. The tournament is scheduled to open Thursday.

He disclosed he long had been aware of the PGA rule—"It's been causing Negro players trouble for three years"—and came here intending to "bring it into the open."

The tournament committee invited Louis, before it learned of the ban, to play as an amateur.

He declared he would remain with Spiller and Clark until some one connected with the PGA told them they were not wanted.

Louis said golf was the last sport with a color-line. He suggested that the PGA waive its rule, at least to the extent of allowing some outstanding Negro player to prove himself.

In this connection, he cited the case of Jackie Robinson opening the gates of professional baseball to Negroes.

East Liverpool Whips Warren Harding

Bill Manning's 19 points led East Liverpool to a 65-40 decision Saturday evening at Warren when the Potters trekked there to face the Harding High Panthers. The Potters were sharp all evening as they rolled up a 19-11 quarter lead and then tallied 12 markers in the second period for a 31-22, halftime advantage as Warren scored 11 points in each quarter.

East Liverpool had their biggest quarter in the third stanza as they poured in 24 points. The Panthers, who lost to Salem Friday evening, managed to account for ten points in the period, leaving the score, 50-32, as the two teams entered the final frame.

POTTER SUBSTITUTES scored 15 points in the final while the Panthers came through with only eight markers as the game ended, 65-40.

Manning scored eight goals and a trio of fouls while Bob McCoy netted six goals and a pair of fouls for a 12-point total. Bill Reed and Charles Hyman showed the way for the losers with 11 and 10 points, respectively, for the losers.

John Vlad, Warren's ace scorer, could get only nine markers for the evening, as he did against the Quakers. His average has dropped considerably after he caged 143 points in his first seven games.

West Point To Strip Blaik Of Powers

WEST POINT, N. Y. (UP)—Army Football Coach Earl Blaik will be stripped of half his powers in a West Point athletic reform, the academy superintendent revealed today.

The shakeup started new reports that Blaik soon will resign.

Maj. Gen. Frederick Irving said he will institute a series of reforms as a result of the cribbing scandal which wiped out the football team last summer. One of these, he said, will split the jobs of athletic director and football coach.

Up to now, Blaik held both positions.

Although Gen. Irving said he does not know whether Blaik will remain at the academy under the new regime, some athletic sources said Blaik almost surely would quit now. It is known that he was unhappy with the way the cribbers were expelled, especially since his son Bob, was one of them.

Pro Nationals Shade Brown, Americans

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Paul Brown of Cleveland, pro football's poker-faced perfectionist, apparently has met his match in a belly-laughing giant named Joe Stydahar. Until next season, anyway.

First it was the Stydahar-coached Los Angeles Rams who beat Brown's Clevelanders for the National Football League championship. Last Saturday it was Stydahar's National Conference All-Stars who trounced Brown's Americans, 30-13, in the second annual pro bowl game.

It was the first time Brown has ever suffered two defeats in a row and it posed a new and puzzling situation for a man who has tasted few setbacks, indeed, in six highly successful years of coaching. Was Brown bitter? He was. And it showed.

WITH RAIN WATER trickling from his hat, he stood alone for a moment in the Los Angeles Coliseum mud and dourly contemplated his predicament before sloshing over to Stydahar's bench. "Congratulations!" Brown remarked. "You were good. We stunk out the joint."

That wasn't the case at all for it was a close game all the way until the Nationals erupted with three touchdowns in the fourth quarter behind the slingshot armwork of quarterback Bob Waterfield.

Stydahar, more jovial than ever, attributed his triumph to the gift of laughter and a sense that the world is mad. "The happiest team won," said the laughing boy. "Our players acted as if they enjoyed it."

"Frankly," Coach Brown confessed, "I don't have much to say. I didn't get much of a charge out of it."

Brown could not laugh, but his quarterback, Otto Graham could. Asked what the Nationals had that the Americans lacked, Graham merrily replied: "More points."

Campanella Signs

BROOKLYN (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers today had the Most Valuable Player in the National League—Catcher Roy Campanella—safely in the fold for another year.

The Brooks announced yesterday that Campanella had signed his contract during Christmas week. No figures were given, but it was believed to be $24,000, an increase of $5,000 over last year.

SETS SCHOOL RECORD

MARION (AP)—Dick Gunder, six-foot two-inch guard on the Marion St. Marys High School basketball team, set a new scoring record Saturday night. He made 22 field goals for 44 points. His team defeated Columbus Holy Family, 85-23. It was St. Mary's ninth win without a loss this season.

Demaret Wins Crosby Golf Tournament

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Bing Crosby's National Amateur golf tournament, a $10,000 event with a million-dollar cast, goes down in sports history as the battle of the big wind, torrential rains and a fruitless struggle with par.

Colorful Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif., won the event yesterday with a 36-hole total of 145. It was a one-over-par figure.

The tournament, the profits of which revert to charity, was beset by stormy weather from the start, with Saturday's second round cancelled because of the storm.

The victory was worth $2,000. Demaret pocketed an additional $500 by finishing third in the pro-amateur competition with co-mediaman Bob Hope. They scored a best-ball of 70-64-134.

Michigan State's 1951 football team was the first Spartan grid squad to have an undefeated and untied season since 1913.
